Water regularly
Summer pruning

Autumn

Feed in February
Keep spraying regularly
Water regularly
Summer prune until end of March, then leave to go dormant

Winter

Choose & plant new roses
Winter pruning
Clean up leaf debris under roses
Spray after pruning

Planting

Prepare the site by digging in Daltons Garden Mix. The hole should be 1/3 bigger than the root area of the new plant. Plant with a good margin between the graft and the top of the soil to allow for applying compost in the future. Fertiliser should only be applied to the surface of the soil after planting to avoid burning the roots.

Winter Pruning

Take all thin, weak or dead stems right out. The remaining thicker strong healthy stems should be cut back by approx 1/3. Use sharp, clean secateurs, and cut the stem approx 15mm above an outward-facing group of 5 leaves or the leaf nodule (a 'bump' on the stem). The angle of the cut should be approx 45 degrees.

Summer Pruning

Cut back stems as they finish flowering, taking them down to the first outward-facing group of 5 leaves and cut the stem approx 15mm above the joint on an angle of approx 45 degrees. Removing only the spent flower heads will encourage weaker new growth.

Watering

It's almost impossible to overwater roses, and a hose trickling steadily at the base of the plant once every 10 days provides a thorough deep watering, avoiding water on the foliage which can encourage disease. Good watering encourages healthy new growth.

Feeding

Rose foods with high potash levels, like ICAN Rose Food, will maximise flowering and - as roses love sheep manure - Sheep Pellets are perfect for roses. Sheep Pellets also encourage earthworms and improves soil texture.

Pest & Fungus Control

Winter: spray after pruning with Free Flow Copper (fungus & disease control) and Enspray 99 Oil (insect control). Spring and summer: follow two regimes to avoid any build-up of resistance: Yates Mavrik Insect & Mite Spray + Yates Fungus Fighter / Combat 3-in-1 for Roses (combo insecticide, fungicide and fertiliser).
